Annual Meeting of Democratic Club; Officers Re-elected in Stormy Session

At the annual election meeting of the Greenbelt Democratic Club on Nov. 24, Walter "Bud" Dean was re-elected president, Howard S. Chasanow was re-elected vice-president and Margaret M. Baldovin was re-elected secretary, while Mildred DonBullian replaced Thomas C. Kelly as treasurer. It was one of the stormiest meetings the club has ever witnessed and probably the one best attended so far.

At issue were 59 new members who entered the club at its previous meeting on October 27. Many of them supported an insurgent faction, the chief spokesmen of which were GHI director Gerald Gough, Arthur Goldstein, and Simon Pristop. At the October meeting the membership had voted to hold the election meeting on November 30. If this had been done, the new members would have been eligible to vote. However, the club's officers, strictly interpreting the by-law stating that elections should be held on the fourth Wednesday in November, shifted the meeting to Nov. 24. Since a 30-day period of membership in the club is required for eligibility to vote, the rescheduling made about half of the audience of 120 ineligible to vote.

In the absence of club President Dean (who did not arrive until the end of the meeting), Vice-President Chasanow acted as chairman. Presiding for most of the meeting was Richard Pilski, a Greenbelt Councilman, representing the club's nominating committee. R. Hal Silvers, civil defense director, acted as parliamentarian.

New Members

Most of the debate concentrated on the voting rights of new members and the legality of holding elections at a different date than the one stated in the by-laws. (It was claimed by Al Herling that this was the case last year.) The debate terminated with a motion to proceed with the election. The voice vote (taken twice) was very close and though Gough and Herling requested a show of hands, none was called for by the chair.

Elections were then held. In addition to the officers later elected, all of whom were named by the nominating committee, Chasanow and Pristop were nominated from the floor for the position of president. Both declined - Pristop claiming he did so in protest of the way the meeting was run. The election was by voice vote and there was no contest.

After the election, Pristop submitted a proposed amendment to the club's constitution by which vacancies occurring during the officers' term of office were to be filled by election rather than by appointment. Gough announced the formation of a "Carlton Sickles for Governor" committee and invited club members to join it.

Perhaps the most positive note of the evening was sounded by Rita Fisher shortly before adjournment. She said:

"This may not be to some people's liking. Under the Hatch act there are things one (Federal employees) cannot do, but there is one thing you may do: attend meetings. The 59 new members . . . their interest may wane. I challenge all you new people to come back." She then reminded the audience that with the increase in membership the quorum requirement has risen to 25 members, making regular attendance even more important than before.

Selection of School Sites

How is a school site acquired? What are the factors that enter into consideration? What are the sequence of events and the procedures?

These questions are of interest to Greenbelters at this time because of the need for a new senior high school. A recent report of the Prince Georges County Board of Education sheds some light on these questions. The following quotations are taken from the publication, The Current School Building Program, 1965.

"After the need for a school in a geographic area has been determined, the area is surveyed for a potential site. Among the factors influencing the selection of a school site are the availability of utilities, the roadways and streets in the area, the topography, the relation of a site to other school sites, the proximity of the children to be served, the extent of potential growth in the area, and the number of acres that must be acquired.

The Board of Education requests and receives the assistance and cooperation of other agencies in selecting a specific site. The State and County Health Departments, for example, conduct percolation tests whenever the site is in a rural area. The Department of Public Works advises the Board in regard to the condition and construction of roads. The Coordinating Committee weighs the site in relation to recreation, parks, water and sewer, and transportation access. The Prince Georges County Real Estate Board provides its members with the information that sites are needed. Professional appraisers are retained to determine the approximate cost per acre for the site.

"After completing the preliminary steps, the Board of Education authorizes further study. The State Superintendent of Schools, by law, must approve the selection and purchase of the proposed site. He, in turn, also submits the location of the potential site to the Maryland State Roads Commission for its approval. Contracts are then written to provide for test borings and for percolation tests, both necessary for building purposes.

"The number of acres is determined by the policy of the Board of Education in regard to the size of school sites: elementary school site, approximately ten acres; junior high school site, from fifteen to twenty acres; senior high school site, from twenty-five to thirty acres. These figures, indicating the desired size for sites, are flexible and are con-

Blood Donors Needed

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Youth Center building on Monday, Dec. 6, from 3 to 7:45 p.m. Any healthy person, between the ages of 21 and 59 may donate. Persons between 18 and 21 will be accepted if they have written permission from their parents or legal guardians.

This year the Greenbelt Lions, in order to stimulate interest in the blood program, will issue a special card to each person who donates blood in the name of the Greenbelt Lions Club. Should the donor or a member of his immediate family need blood within a year from the date which appears on this card, all he needs do is contact the American Red Cross or the Greenbelt Lions Club and blood will be made available.

sidered in relation to specific circumstances.

Professional engineers advise the Board concerning site selection, and they are consulted whenever topographical problems present handicaps. The members of the Potomac Valley Chapter of the American Institute of Architects also render valuable service to the Board.

"Whenever possible, a joint park-school site is acquired when it is indicated that the acquisition would be to the mutual benefit of the Board of Education and the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission."

The Board of Education report also contains a list of future school projects. Included are a new Greenbelt Senior High School (capacity 1,800), to cost an estimated $4,391,039; a new Greenbelt Junior High School (capacity 1,200), to cost an estimated $2,432,725; and a Greenbelt elementary school (12 classrooms — 2 for kindergarten), to cost $700,000. These costs exclude the cost of land.

Board of Education Members Visit Proposed School Sites

Members of the Prince Georges County Board of Education visited Greenbelt on Monday to get a first-hand look at the different sites being proposed for a senior high, junior high and elementary school. After an intensive two-and-a-half-hour inspection tour, the Board indicated that an independent engineering survey would have to be made before any decisions could be reached. Among the subjects to be studied are site improvements, movement of land, and traffic flow.

COUNTY MOVES TOWARD REZONING SLOWDOWN

In face of a wide demand for a zoning moratorium in Prince Georges County, the County Commissioners took a step which may go part of the way towards meeting this goal. In their meeting two days before Thanksgiving they unanimously approved a motion by Commissioner Gladys N. Spellman to hold hearings on a zoning law amendment, empowering them to suspend one of the two annual filing periods.

At present, zoning applications may be submitted only during January and July, and hope has been expressed that the new amendment will be passed in time to suspend the January 1966 filing period. Previously, the commissioners were advised by County Attorney Lionell M. Lockhart that they did not possess the legal powers to declare a moratorium.

The suspension of filing will answer two major demands. On one hand, it will go part of the way toward meeting the demands of the Prince Georges Civic Federation, Prince Georges County Citizens Planning Association, and two other organizations for a moratorium on apartment zoning. These organizations charged that land already zoned for apartments was sufficient to meet the county's needs in the immediate future. This has been countered by Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC) chairman William J. Stevens, who opposed the moratorium. Stevens claimed that a recent zoning inventory revealed that of all the land zoned for apartments in the county, a higher proportion (38% against 36%) is being utilized now, compared to 4 years ago. The total area zoned for apartments by April, 1965, amounted to about 6400 acres or some 5% of the county's area, a rise of approximately 60% since 1961.

A second and more urgent reason for suspending the January filing has been the heavy burden which has lately been imposed on the planning agency. In January this year, 356 new applications were added to a backlog of about 500, and 320 more — covering close to 5000 acres, of which about 2000 were requested for apartment zoning — were filed in July.

Under a new law, the technical staff of the MNCPPC has been required to report on each application within 6 months of its filing and thus has had little opportunity to develop urgently needed master plans. A suspension of filing next January, therefore, might give planners a sorely-needed breathing spell and allow them to pay more attention to long-range planning.

City Notes

Surveyors were at work last week, taking measurements at the Center School site that has been suggested for a Greenbelt branch library. This survey was preliminary to the preparation of a proposal to be made eventually to the county school board for purchase of the site.

After a one-day holiday the city's trash collection workers were back on schedule. They reported only a few turkey carcasses in the Friday collection, but Saturday's round brought in a deluge.

Except for routine maintenance, the city crews took on only one job last week — painting silver the three new light poles in the north parking lot.

The Board, joined by members of their staff, an architect and city officials, carefully examined the proposed senior high school site adjacent to the Beltway on parcel 15, the junior high school site at the lake on parcel 11, and those sites on parcels 1 and 2 (between the Baltimore - Washington Parkway and Ridge Road) earmarked for a senior high, junior high and elementary school. Some of the sites present certain problems. Both senior high school sites revealed terrain difficulties which would necessitate the moving of earth, especially at the Beltway site. Parcels 1 and 2 had no adequate, ready access roads to the school sites and the junior high site at the lake appeared too narrow to include all the required school facilities.

During the morning tour, the group's hike covered many miles of Greenbelt terrain, some of which were hilly and rough. Stopping often to ask questions and to consult maps, the members of the Board showed a keen interest in every phase of the school building program. They were also driven over the routes the school buses would follow to reach the school sites.

The group consisted of Board of Education president, W. Carroll Beatty; Board members Mrs. Louise Yuill, Doswell Brooks, Thomas Hicks and Eugene O'Brien; Superintendent of Schools William Schmidt; Director of School Construction, Arthur E. Robinson; Elliot Robertson, engineer; Dennis Madden, architect; City Councilmen William Hoff, David Champion, Richard Pilski and Francis White; City Manager James K. Giese and administrative aide, Ron Dick.

Viet Nam Discussion

The Greenbelt Committee on Peace in Viet Nam is sponsoring a discussion on Viet Nam at the Municipal Building at 8 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 3. Since many people were concerned about a lack of time for questions at the previous debate, which was held on October 8, there will be a long period devoted to questions from the audience.

Speakers supporting the government position are:

David Scull, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in the last election, and Republican party official in Montgomery County;

Dr. Walter Jacobs, professor of government and politics at the University of Maryland, a noted authority on world Communism.

Opposing the war are the following speakers:

Mrs. Bernice Steele, recently back from a trip to Indonesia, where she went as a representative of the Women's Strike for Peace and spoke with representatives of North Viet Nam and the National Liberation Front of South Viet Nam.

Mr. Allen Solganick, A National Defense Fellow in the Department of Economics at the University of Maryland, is presently writing a doctor's dissertation on Communist China.

All persons are welcome to attend.

BUDGET MEETING

The GHI Board of Directors will consider the 1966 budget at their next meeting on Thursday, December 9. The meeting will start at 7:45 p.m. in the GHI Administration Building on Hamilton Place. Interested GHI members are invited to attend.

"Election Soviet Style"

After many years of rather passive membership in the Greenbelt Democratic Club where we let the regulars run things, we decided to attend the annual November election meeting of the club and become more active. What we witnessed on the evening of November 24 at the city offices was truly amazing.

Instead of a democratically run meeting, we witnessed an election run Soviet style, run as if we lived in a Moscow ward precinct.

Bud Dean, the president, could nowhere be found. Howard Chasanow, the vice-president, pleaded inability to conduct an election and improperly turned the chair over to a Mr. Pilski. None of the so-called chairmen of this meeting made any real attempt to find out who the members in good standing under the by-laws were and to issue voting cards and ballots to those legally eligible to vote in the election. So no one, including the parliamentarian, knew who was entitled to vote in the election. Yet the so-called chairman, Pilski, repeatedly took voice votes from what amounted to a disorderly mob. Whenever the calmer heads attempted to prevail and request a division or head count, Pilski refused to follow Roberts' Rules of Order. He repeatedly attempted to conduct the election before the nominations were even made!

Only repeated requests from ourselves for some orderly procedure alerted the parliamentarian to request Pilski to call for nominations before ramming through the election.

The American style of election is by secret ballot of the individual rather than the Soviet style of the collective. Since the right of individual members to vote was questioned but never ascertained, and ballots were never issued to those qualified to vote, the election was obviously illegal. We are sure the appropriate state court in Maryland would set it aside as having been conducted in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

Therefore, since an important election is on the horizon for governor, county commissioners, and congressmen, we may suggest that Bud Dean, Howard Chasanow and the other officers resign, call for new nominations in December and a new legal election in January to avoid court proceedings in the continuing struggle for the American way of life.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baron
(Editor's Note: Mr. Pilski was chairman of the nominations committee.)

GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW

Point of View by Dorothy Sucher

A hopeful seeker after the grass roots sometimes gets lost in a patch of crab-grass. SCENE: a meeting of a local Populist Party club.

"Psst!" an acquaintance greeted me, as I entered the meeting early. "Are you infiltrating?"

"No, it's just that I've been a registered Populist for ten years. Finally decided to come to a meeting." At least 100 people had already arrived, and more were coming. "This looks like a pretty lively organization," I added. "Where are the officers? Where is the president?"

He shook his head. "I wouldn't expect to see the president tonight. By the way, as long as you're here, would you like to infiltrate?"

A gavel thundered before I could reply, and I took a seat. A tense silence settled over the room.

A gentleman at the speakers' table rose. "Folks, in the absence of our beloved president I'd like to say that we're all here tonight to elect the officers who will guide the destinies of our club through the coming year. So I say to you, let's not fool around. I cede the chair to the hardworking and popular chairman of the nominating committee."

"Right!" cried that gentleman, unfolding a sheet of paper as he rose. "Here are the names of the candidates your nominating committee has selected for the coming year." He read them off. "Okay, let's vote. First, for president. All in favor of . . ."

Pandemonium broke loose. Several members of the audience jumped out of their chairs, waving their arms and shouting.

"Point of order! Mr. Chairman!"

"Mr. Chairman, I protest!"

"Point of information! Point of information!"

The chairman gavelled them into silence. "You're out of order. As I was saying, all those in favor of . . ."

"Point of order! A point of order always takes precedence."

"So does a point of information. Point of information! Point of information!"

People were leaping up all over the room. Fearing violence, I hastily assured myself there was a clear path to the exit.

The chairman was exasperated. "Well, make up your minds. What do you want, a point of order or a point of information?"

"Either!"

"Both!"

The chairman turned to the parliamentarian. "Does a point of order take precedence over a point of information, or is it the other way around?"

The parliamentarian put on his glasses thoughtfully and said, "I don't know."

"What do we do now?" muttered the chairman.

"Put it to a vote!" cried several voices.

"Okay, if you want to be childish," said the chairman. "But bear in mind that we're supposed to be conducting an election. All those in favor of a point of order taking precedence over a point of information, say 'aye'."

"Aye!"

"Opposed?"

"No!"

"Now, all those in favor of it the other way around."

"Aye!"

"No!"

"Carried," said the chairman, and slammed down his gavel. "Now. For the office of president, all those in favor of . . ."

"Mr. Chairman, I demand to make a statement." The man who had leaped to his feet was visibly quivering with indignation.

"All right, get it off your chest," said the chairman wearily. "But it doesn't matter what you say, you're out of order."

The indignant man spoke: "In the first place, Mr. Chairman, this meeting has not been called to order; the minutes of the last meeting have not been read; neither have there been any reports from committee chairman, any old business or new business. According to the by-laws, all of these are supposed to precede the election of officers."

The chairman asked the parliamentarian "Is he right?"

The parliamentarian consulted the by-laws and nodded.

"Furthermore," said the indigant man, "Before the election of officers it is necessary to ask for nominations from the floor. This has not been done."

"If that's the way you feel," snapped the chairman, "Why bother having a nominations committee at all? I never asked for the job."

Encouraging cries from the audience of: "You're all right! Nothing personal! Don't take offense!"

"And finally," the indignant man concluded, "no attempt has been made to determine who is eligible to vote in this election. In particular, what about that large group of people — 50 or 60, I believe — who applied for membership and paid their dues at last month's meeting. Are they eligible to vote?"

"The infiltrators," someone whispered.

The chairman cleared his throat. "First of all, let me thank you for your very fine statement. I think I can truthfully say you've given us all some food for thought. And now that you've had your say, I hope you'll be fair-minded enough not to attempt to monopolize the discussion. Let us now complete the election of officers."

A great cry went up from the audience. "But are we eligible to vote?"

"No. All those in favor of the candidates whose names have been selected by your nominating committee?"

Shouts of "aye!"

"Opposed?"

Shouts of "no!"

"The ayes have it."

"Mr. Chairman, I demand a division of the house!"

Everyone whispered to everyone else, "What's that?"

The chairman asked the parliamentarian, and the parliamentarian shrugged.

I heard someone say, "A division of the house means they want him to count the votes," but no one paid any attention.

The audience began yelling again about points of order and points of information, the chairman told them again that they were out of order, and I left wondering whether the time had come for me to switch to the Vegetarian Party.

Speaking Sternly

Let us begin by setting the record straight: the Greenbelt News-Review is exactly 28 years old. It is true that our last issue carried the headline "News-Review Begins 30th year" which would have put us at 29, but the article which followed makes it clear that we are only 28. Are you still following, dear reader?

What started the mixup was the fact that for a long time there has been something funny about our volume numbers. Last year's Thanksgiving issue, for instance, in which our 27th jubilee was commemorated, was marked as the first, issue of volume 29.

Someone must have noticed, though, because by December 3 we were back to volume 28, number 3. Then some smart-aleck substitute proofreader must have caught the change (our wife is the regular proofreader and she would not do such a thing) for before the end of 1964 we were back to volume 29 again.

This brings us to the evening last week when the Thanksgiving copy was made up. For the uninforme d, the News-Review is made up every Tuesday night in the dimly-lit basement of 15 Parkway — a homey-looking place (feel free to drop in) with a battery of electric meters covering one wall and a maze of plumbing across the ceiling. An argument ensued about the exact age of the News-Review: One confused newcomer argued that since we were starting volume 30, we were entering our 30th year, while oldtimers recalled that last year's anniversary issue marked the end of our 27th. Finally everything was put straight, but somewhere along the line our headline writer must have got sidetracked (maybe she was too busy savoring an unprintable letter-to-the-editor) and the headline became "News-Review Begins 30th Year." Our alert regular proofreader caught the discrepancy, then someone else caught her correction and you know the rest. One thing sure about the News-Review, everyone has a finger in everybody's pie.

If this be a consolation, we are not alone. The Nationalist Chinese are celebrating this year the 100th birthday of the founder of the Chinese Revolution, the late Sun Yat Sen who was born in 1866. They claim that his age should be reckoned in the traditional Chinese manner, by which a child is one year old when he is born. We have better excuses.

Anyway, we are beginning volume 29 again. Let's hope no one corrects that.

Ann and Tony Pisano resumed their winning ways at last Friday's duplicate bridge session when they scored a tremendous East-West .727 game, some 17½ points better than their nearest rivals, Lucille and Lou Lushine. In the North-South direction the director, Al Skolnik, teamed up with his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Skolnik, to win by 5½ points over the second-place team of Tina & Si Prostoop. Next game: Friday Dec. 10.

Many, many years ago, about the time when the government was starting construction of Greenbelt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones lived in a home on land that is now the Lakeside North Apartments. Well, the Joneses are back in Greenbelt living at Lakeside North, in an apartment that is just about where their garden was back in 1937. Welcome home!

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Russell Kerr, 3 Forestway, who has been in the hospital for the past three weeks.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS NEED VOLUNTEERS

Greenbelt's Camp Fire Girl program needs help, now that Mrs. Margot Carper, leader of the sixth-grade group, is leaving the area.

Mrs. Carper, a resident of Riverdale, first formed a group in the fall of 1964. A growing demand soon led to the formation of groups for second, third, and fourth graders, as well.

During the 1964-65 school year, the girls participated in numerous county-wide activities: the Camp Fire Fair; summer day and resident camps; as well as cookouts, trips, service projects, and the yearly peanut sale which helps support the organization.

The leader of the sixth grade group will be leaving the area in May, and she has offered to help train a volunteer replacement so that the girls may continue with the program. In addition more leaders are needed for second graders from the Center and North End Schools, who have asked to form Blue Bird groups. For further information, contact Mrs. Margot Carper, 5618 61st Place, Riverdale, Maryland (AP 7-4018).
